

Linda Campbell
Restorative Justice Practitioner

Linda Campbell is a community leader with expertise in educational reform and non-profit management. She currently is working to expand the use of restorative practices in the Denver Public Schools through her work as a Restorative Practices Coordinator at Joe Shoemaker Elementary School and through the Barton Institute for Philanthropy and Social Enterprise at DU. She has been involved in the Denver Public Schools in a variety of ways including as a founder of the Denver Preschool Program, a founder of P.S. 1 Charter School, and the Co-President of the PTSA at East High School and Bromwell Elementary School. Through these experiences she has come to understand how students' social emotional learning supports and enhances their academic learning. She plans to spend the rest of her life dedicating her time and her resources to the needs of the whole child in the Denver Public Schools.
