

Matt Miller

Vice President, United Airlines Denver Hub

Matt Miller is vice president of the Denver hub at United, responsible for safety and execution of all operations at the fastest-growing mid-continent hub in United's system. Prior to this role, Matt was United's vice president and general manager of the San Francisco hub, responsible for all operations at United's premier international gateway to the Asia-Pacific region and a vital hub in the airline's system.

Before his work at the San Francisco hub, Matt served as United's vice president of international line stations, overseeing all of United's international airports. He has held a variety of senior management positions at United, including managing director of ground product and lounges, in which he was responsible for brand strategy for airports and for all aspects of United's commercial lounge portfolio. Preceding that, he held various commercial leadership roles in sales, marketing, pricing and revenue management.

Matt joined Continental Airlines in 2001 and in 2004 he moved to the Asia-Pacific region, serving several assignments in both Continental's and United's Tokyo and Hong Kong offices. Matt returned to the U.S. in 2015 to join the Airport Operations team.

Matt holds a Master of Business Administration from the University of South Carolina.
