Zahra Abdulameer
Communications and Marketing Intern

At Denver Public Schools Foundation, we believe that our city is strengthened by every student who graduates ready to lead a successful life. At the DPS Foundation, we invest in accelerating progress, we connect the community to our classrooms, and we inspire confidence in the promise of public education.

Zahra started working as the communications and marketing intern in June 2019. She is a student at the University of Colorado, Boulder studying sociology and leadership and undergoing a pre-law career path. She is active in PUKSTA, a civic engagement program where she works to create a workshop-based tour for Muslim high school students to learn about the resources available to them to better navigate being Muslim on a college campus. She is also a President’s Leadership Class Scholar, where she learns about the importance of being a leader in society and how to hold that position. She is also heavily involved with the Muslim Student Association on her school’s campus. Zahra hopes to pursue a legal education in order to work with immigrants and make the transition and legal processes easier for them.

Zahra enjoys working on projects that channel her creativity and allow her to convey news and updates regarding DPS. This is especially important to her because she is a DPS alumni.

We know that when our students thrive, our city thrives. I believe in our mission because with the right resources, students will have the opportunity to build a promising future for themselves and their loved ones.
